

Statement of Individuality

For many years, hot rodders have integrated dramatic design elements like flames into their paint schemes to help stand out from the rest of the cars on the road. The latest design from the studio of Aldo Drudi pays tribute to the traditional flame paint job, yet takes the concept in bold, new directions never seen before.

Created for the rider who does not expect to see himself or herself everywhere, the bright flames complement a base of linear and gradient graphics. Traditional elements blend with modern style to form a design that is one-of-a-kind. Just like the rider who chooses it to make their own statement of individuality...
